Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

Entered at the Postoffice at Barre as Second Class Matter.

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1906.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,920

When Hoch finally went it was with as much suddenness as that of a certain Vermont murderer.

It is said to be not at all significant that the divorce congress met in Washington soon after February 17.

Candidate W. J. Bigelow, who is out for the Burlington mayoralty, is hot on the warpath against Mayor Burke. He realizes that it is necessary to strike when the iron is hot.

The Vermont Issue, the official organ of the State Anti-Saloon League, is now entirely edited by the Rev. Walter R. Davenport of Barre, and the present number of the issue is typical of his energy. The paper is under the business management of Supt. Ferguson of the Anti-Saloon League, and will continue to be published from Burlington.

Next in importance to the starting things told by ex-prisoners at the state house of correction is the language in which they state them. Here was one man from the city, which rests beneath the shadow of the state university, who declared that "his last trip" to the house of correction was "a disappointment." Notice in passing that it was his last trip. He apparently had taken trips to the house of correction before and if the courts be willing he undoubtedly would take some more. His was the habit, of which Supt. Morgan complains. But it was to the not elegant but forcible language that we wished to call attention. In specializing, this witness from Burlington declared "I was hungry from the time I arrived here until I left the place. The hash was bad—very bad—and so far as the bean soup is concerned, why, you'd have to swim to find the beans. The pea soup was so thin you could look through it and the fellow who could get next to a feed enough to fill him up was certainly all to the mustard." We take it from the witness' testimony that there were not many who were "all to the mustard."

TILLMAN AND HIS DISPENSARY.

The South Carolina dispensary liquor law, which was recently pointed to as a model for Vermont law makers, will stand or fall, it seems, with Senator Benjamin F. Tillman. The fact that the famous "pitchfork" senator stands sponsor for the dispensary law does not increase the confidence of most people in the efficacy of the system. The law was nearly upset at the last session of the South Carolina legislature, being defeated in the House and only saved by a close vote in the Senate. The reason that the dispensary idea is losing ground in that state is because of the wholesale graft that has been found in connection with it. An investigating committee (a familiar term in Vermont) is now hard at work probing charges of wrong-doing in the giving out of contracts of the dispensary management, in relation chiefly to the purchase of labels and bottles. It already has been found that county managers have been guilty of graft on an extensive scale. While admitting that there is graft, Senator Tillman, who is putting up the fight of his life on this issue, declares that his scheme has been unjustly attacked and discredited by a gang of grafters who have set public sentiment against a good law. Whatever grounds he may have for this defense, it is certain that sentiment in South Carolina is turning strongly against the dispensary idea of liquor selling. At the same time, Senator Tillman finds himself in jeopardy. His spectacular position in Congress is not exactly relished by his constituents, and there is developing an undercurrent against him which threatens to break out in open rebellion at any moment. A correspondent of the Springfield Republican from South Carolina writes that were it not for the javelin-like sarcasm of Tillman he would have plenty of opponents for a seat in the United States Senate. They hesitate to attract that powerful force of his sarcasm which would be wielded as argument in an election contest. Yet the correspondent declares that it is thought that someone will rise up to successfully combat Tillman's ambitions. When that time comes South Carolina will lose her unique position, but there will not be universal regret for it.

I'd rather be a "has been" than a "never was," but I am the honors and the profits who can claim to be an "is."

Promptness.

The man who always does a thing right on the very minute will never get blown up because of failure to begin it. While he who idly puts it off till he gets good and ready may get a blast quite well designed to make him feel unsteady.

So when you have a thing to do go right to work and do it. If you just put it off, the chances are good that you will run it.

Cold in the head is not only annoying, but likely to develop into catarrh. One teaspoonful of mustard dissolved in a tumblerful of cold water and used as a gargle three times a day will often effect a speedy cure. In more obstinate cases equal parts of loaf sugar and pulverized alum used as a snuff will give instant relief.

Those wheels of plaited ribbon interlacing each other, which are so popular now as a trimming on skirts, are easily applied. In putting on either wheels, scrolls, scallops or squares a gauge is necessary for the center of the trimming. This may be accomplished with a binding thread run in at measured distances from the bottom of the skirt, from twelve to eighteen inches being the approved length.

HEALTH HINTS.

For people who suffer from rheumatism or gout potatoes should always be cooked in their skins, as if peeled they lose their most valuable salts in cooking.

Green vegetables and salads will counteract a tendency to pimples and other skin eruptions. By the way, sufferers from eczema should eat sparingly of fruit, which, as a rule, contains too much acid to be suitable for them.

A disagreeable form of erythema is flushing of the face, which occurs chiefly after eating, and is due to improper diet, hasty eating, overeating or drinking cold fluids. General neglect of the health, lack of exercise and living in badly ventilated rooms are all causes of blotchy skins.

Short Sermons on Practical Politics

SERMON No. I.—TAXES

Taxes, a necessary evil. That's the way it looks to the average man—and most of us aren't much above the average. But most of us are willing to pay as much in proportion as the next man. Trouble is, generally, that the next man is the better liar and has the money to hire expert and fluent legal liars to help him.

What's the trouble? In the first place, we pay too many taxes and get too little for our money. Highway taxes, for instance, are an enormous strain on the smaller towns.

What's the remedy? State highways, built and maintained by state aid. Visionary, you say. Let's see.

Vermont's present extravagant system of administering state institutions, amply proved and demonstrated, wastes enough money every year to pay the interest on bonds enough to gridiron the state with trunk highways up, down and crosswise.

Let's quit wasting the poor man's money and get the state on to a business basis. Let's build some trunk line highways with the money that's being fooled away in antique, foolish and costly ways of doing the state's business.

Let's stand for something.

Let's compel our public officers to stand for something.

Let's have a re organization of the state's financial methods that will mean something.

Come to church next week.

ASSEMBLY TO MET MAY 1.

A Rumor That Russia Will Bid for Our Money.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 24.—The government has decided that the national assembly shall meet May 1.

In the course of an article pointing out a general improvement in the financial situation, Premier Witte's newspaper organ, the Russkoe Gossudarstvo, states that owing to the impossibility of raising the $300,000,000 required to meet the extraordinary expenditures provided for in the budget by ordinary means, it will be needful to have recourse to the more or less extreme measures to which other states frequently resort when they find themselves in analogous difficulties. Russia's want of money is so great that is prepared, it is said, to give commercial advantages to the United States for the exploitation of Russian Turkestan for forty years, on payment of $200,000,000.

The mutinous Cossacks at Vladivostok surrendered to the authorities, after having been subjected to a bombardment, and delivered up the chief agitators and the regimental colors. It is impossible to ascertain what casualties occurred.

It is rumored that a massacre of Jews has occurred at Vitebsk, a suburb of Gomel. There were numerous victims, and much pillaging and burning.

trouble or expense of ordering new gowns. If you want to change your dress, she says, do not change your costume, but work your miracle in some other way. Change your necktie, your belt, your hat, your shoes, your vest or your yoke. It is these dressy little variations which make all the difference between being well or shabbily dressed.

The hat in the cut is of white felt. The long feather is a handsome black and white combination affair, while the shou and the bandeau bow are of empire green velvet.
